

Contents

Something you want instead of Nomenclature	2
INTRODUCTION	4
1 First chapter	10
2 Second chapter	15

Something you want instead of Nomenclature

USA	United States of America
USA1	United States of America1
USA10	United States of America10
USA11	United States of America11
USA12	United States of America12
USA13	United States of America13
USA14	United States of America14
USA15	United States of America15
USA16	United States of America16
USA17	United States of America17
USA18	United States of America18
USA19	United States of America19
USA2	United States of America2
USA20	United States of America20
USA21	United States of America21
USA22	United States of America22
USA23	United States of America23
USA24	United States of America24

USA25	United States of America25
USA26	United States of America26
USA3	United States of America3
USA4	United States of America4
USA5	United States of America5
USA6	United States of America6
USA7	United States of America7
USA8	United States of America8
USA9	United States of America9

Introduction

Some text.

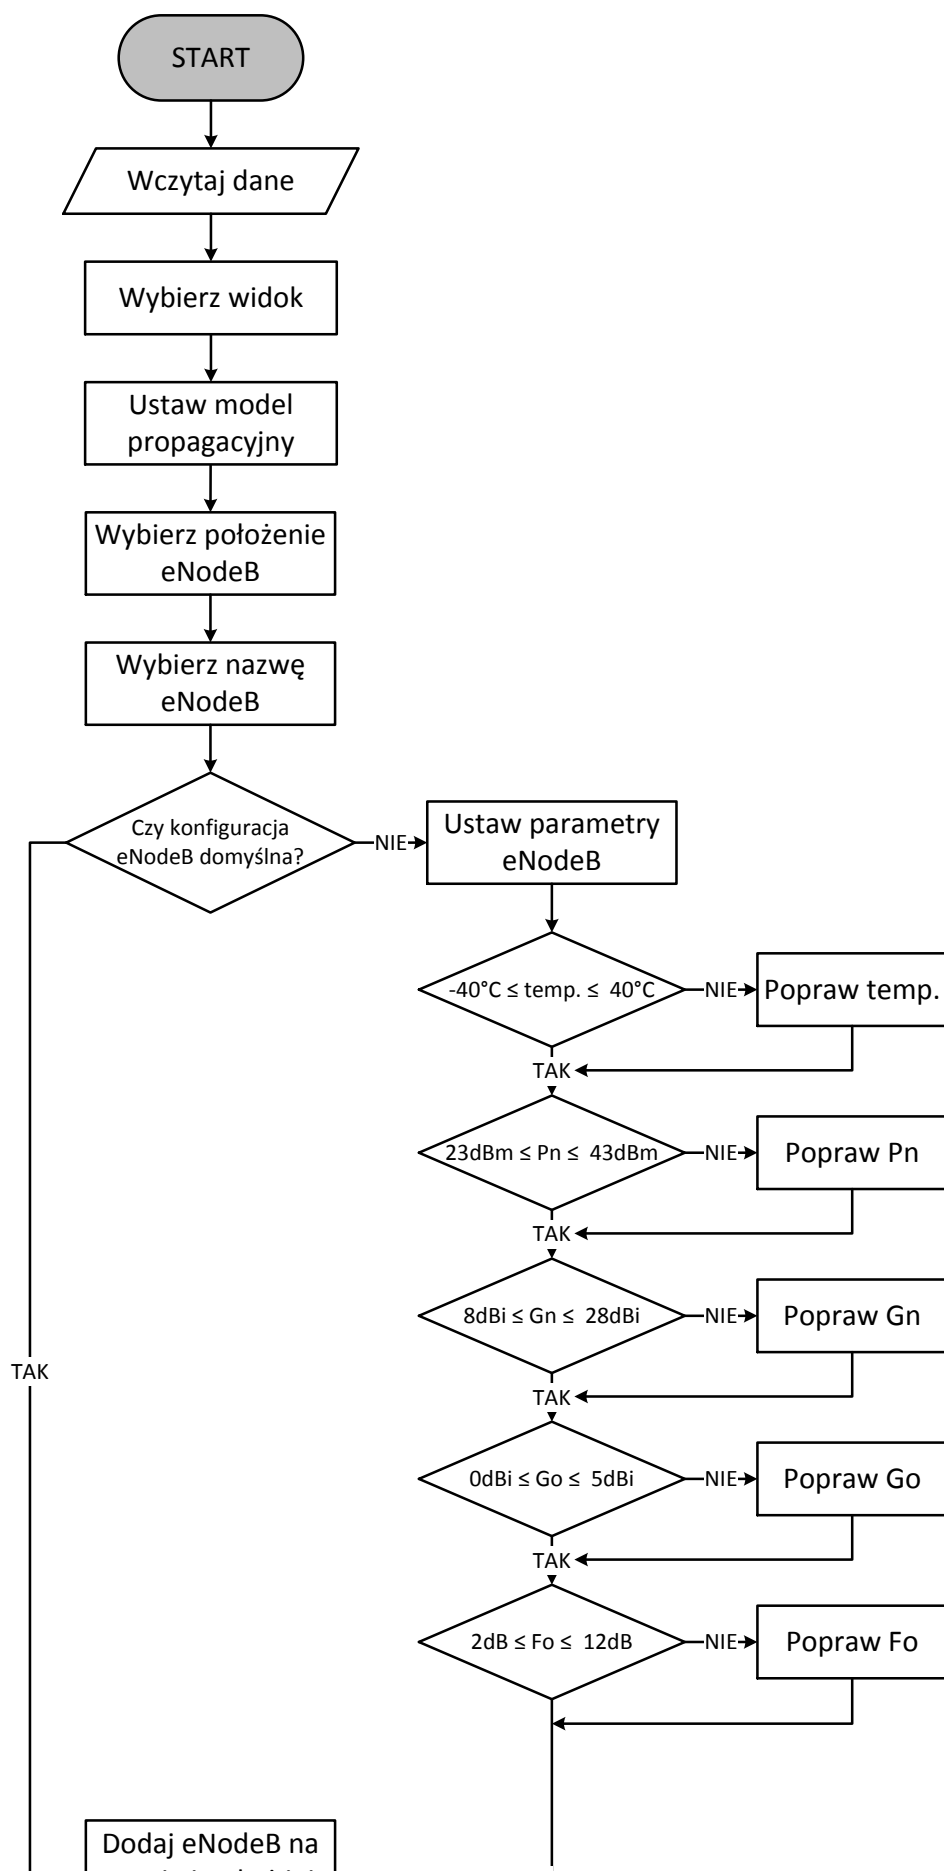

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle

Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

Chapter 1

First chapter

Some text.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

Chapter 2

Second chapter

Some text.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.

And one more time.

Venus Williams eased into the second round of the WTA's Family Circle Cup in Charleston Tuesday after defeating the Czech Republic's Iveta Benesova in straight sets 6-4, 6-3. The American, a former winner of the tournament who is desperate for ranking points to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, is currently 87th in the world and made hard work of dispatching Benesova in little under an hour and a half. But the victory will come as a relief for Venus Williams, who has endured a tough 12 months after being diagnosed with Sjogren syndrome, an auto-immune disorder. The diagnosis explains why Williams finished 2011 outside the world top 100, the first time that has happened in 15 years. She now plays the seventh-seeded Serbian Jelena Jankovic in the second round. Serena Williams, like Venus a previous winner of the tournament, takes on Russian Elena Vesnina in her second round tie late on Tuesday.